

Maria Haukaas Storeng, Breathing

I was lost and hope was gone
I was sinking like a stone
Like a shipwreck stranded I was all alone Saying all is well so no one else could tell Heavy shackles round my feet getting ready for the next defeat but somehow you came stumbling into my life and made me realize and now my feet are lifting slowly from the ground
I'm breathing- now nothing holds me down
I'm breathing- I thought that I would drown
I'm breathing- I'm still breathing
It's kind of funny how things change
And how I'm free at last from all this chains and how this weight upon my shoulders disappeared with you just being her
and now my feet are lifting slowly from the ground
I'm breathing- now nothing holds me down
I'm breathing- I thought that I would drown
I'm breathing- I'm still breathing
Once the dark was all I knew Now the sky is turning blue
I see it - I feel it My world has turned around and I'm breathing
I was lost but now I'm found My feet don't touch the ground (I'm breathing)
Now nothing holds me down (I'm breathing)
I thought that I would drown (I'm breathing)
I'm still breathing
I'm still breathing
My world has turned around
I'm still breathing
I'm still breathing
