

Maria McKee, Nobody's Child

Turning around,
I see someone that I thought I used to know
You wide-eyed in the crowd
How does it feel to see the world
And not turn cold
I wanna hold you and protect you from the change
Though I know it's gonna happen anyway
Take this veil
And I'll dry your eyes
In a world like ours
You're nobody's child

I'm depending on you
To teach me all the things I forgot I ever knew
Baby you can lean on me
I may lean a little too
Whatever gets us through
And I feel a mountain movin' deep within
At the end of the revival we begin
Take this veil
And I'll dry your eyes
In a world like ours
I'm nobody's child

And I feel a mountain movin' deep within
At the end of the revival we begin
Take this veil
Dry these eyes
You've seen me break
But I'm nobody's child
