

Mariah Carey, Right To Dream

I lay awake sometimes
Scared to close my eyes
And I wonder where I left myself
I lost the will to fight
And the night melts into morning
Still it's cold beneath the sun
Cause the fire in me is languishing
And I'm too frozen to run
And every once in a while
There's a distant glimmer of hope I find
Somewhere deep inside
Someone strong to stand besides
And I know she's gonna be fine in time
Cause you see
I've got a right to dream
There's more than this for me
An angel with broken wings
He warns me with his eyes
And the ice is sheathed around my heart
I grovel as he smiles
See I grow up enlocked in sorrow
So I learn to block the pain
But I won't give up tomorrow
Cause I've come to life again
And every once in a while
There's a distant glimmer of hope I find
Somewhere deep inside
Someone strong to stand besides
And I know she's gonna be fine in time
Cause you see
I've got a right to dream
There's more than this for me
