Marilyn Manson, Dope Hat/Diary Of A Dope Fiend

I peek into the hole, I struggle for control

The children love the show, but they fail to see the anguish in my eyes

Fail to see the anguish in my eyes

I scratch around the brim, I let my mind give in

The crowd begins to grin, but they seem to scream when darkness fills my eyes

Seem to scream when darkness fills my eyes, it's no surprise

Fail to see the tragic, turn it into magic

My big top tricks will always make you happy, but we all know the hat is wearing me

My bag is in the hat, it's filled with this and that

My vision's getting fat, the rabbit's just a monkey in disguise

Stars and pills and needles dance before our eyes

They will bite the hand if it is slower than the quickness of their scrutinizing eyes

Fail to see the tragic, turn it into magic

Chicanery will always make you happy, but we all know the hat is wearing me note: Diary of a Dope Fiend uses the word "chicken" instead of "monkey".
