

Mark Owen, Sun

Sun, lay it on lay it on
lay it everywhere
you have gone
where she sleeps
where she keeps
for everyone
Pour another whiskey, anything to do but stare watch a spider build a cobweb while you chew another nail down to the bone So busy working that you don't know what to say got a feeling, kind of sticky when you're in your present company Sun, let it on let it on
lay it everywhere
you have been
never seen
are you keen
for everyone
Pausing while you take a photograph from the mountain on your shoulder to the fool that makes a mocking of the world And you beg yourself to stay cause you can't afford to stop it while she's eating you for breakfast - they say Sun, have it all have it all
have it everywhere
that you want it to go
it to glow
for everyone
You feel like you're coming apart
You feel like you're back here where you start
As you lie beneath your perfect sun where have you gone?
where have you gone?
Lay it on
lay it on
you have gone
while she sleeps while she keeps
for everyone
Sun, let her go
let her go
Out of everyone
you are one
you are one
you are loved.
