

Martin Jondo, Somehow

Somehow

Somewhere

and I call call you my heavenly pearl oh could you make me overstand dis ya difficult wold with all things running up and down and faster than fast with all the lights sparkling in bars and wars one million letters making history in every day

I read the news see the writings on the wall on my way while one a differ between tiny little bigger and mad the other differ between yellow, red, brown, snowwhite and black and who feels Lord he knows it and what he sees is dreader than dread red tears stealing your hope man but you cant forget

what has been done yeah

to your brother

what has been done yeah

to your own

CHORUS

somehow the sunlight will come down to your home somewhere you find a place where you aint alone somehow wisdom will come and overflow

all your rainy days your teardrops and your mean heavy load and hey pearl could you tell me where I am I feel lost in dis ya labyrinth I dont know where to walk who to trust satan is living in dem corrupted minds and evil seed dem a go plant after dem brainwashed your mind downtown every corner is a dangerous zone barking people with high fever out of control piff pfaff but the murderer is gone like his shot nobody knows why dis ya innocent girl has been his spot and I hear the woman crying her innocent girl has been his spot and I hear the woman imploring to give her back and I feel the woman dying she lost everthing that she got if you are desperated and falling sing along

CHORUS

somehow the sunlight will come down to your home

somewhere you find a place where you aint alone

somehow wisdom will come and overflow

all your rainy days your teardrops and your mean heavy load

friend if your life is full of darkness and you cant see no light you got to be strong start a rebellion and love will let you thrive all of your seeds see them growing and know you know my frined if youre fighting youll win one day one day someway

CHORUS

somehow the sunlight will come down to your home

somewhere you find a place where you aint alone

somehow wisdom will come and overflow

all your rainy days your teardrops and your mean heavy load