

Mary Lou Lord, Two Boats

Harsh words I heard him say
He knows how to hurt me
Rear lights and flying kites
Long days in the sun
All gone behind us now
So hard to remember
This time I&#039;ll put it down
Before it&#039;s begun

And you harbored in your sheltering bay
Still watching as she&#039;s sailing away
No movement on the ocean today
But for two boats drifting apart

Deep looks into my eyes he tries to convince me
No way I&#039;d fall for that I know what I am

He swears and so do I
But we don&#039;t believe it
No God or chosen one
Can prove where we stand

And you harbored in your sheltering bay
Still watching as she&#039;s sailing away
No movement on the ocean today
But for two boats drifting apart

And I doubt everything I knew, or at least what I supposed
It&#039;s my fault and it&#039;s your fault too, you know

And you harbored in your sheltering bay
Still watching as she&#039;s sailing away
No movement on the ocean today
But for two boats drifting apart