Mastodon, We Built This Come Death

Now you see all this time Work nine to five Monday through Friday I'm singing I sing the blues for you Now I'm standing in the pouring rain My feet are cold but I cant complain And I wonder how you have been I need you love I miss you so I know it's right but it's always strange How I scream All this life's worth all the while Heartache and slave driving pain I sing the blues for you Now I'm standing in the pouring rain My feet are cold but I can't complain And I wonder how you have been I need you love I miss you so I know it's right but it's always strange
