

Matt Pond PA, Electric

fell through the floor it opened up i'm on my back downstairs when i came to and i looked up liheard the laughing name i need the shock through to wake me up as i smile from the pain i grabbed the handle for the ice cream the currents through me live you hold my hand to pull me off my mother's frozen stance you feel the current t wake me up there's train through my spine now i'm electric and i'm full blown (something)

my father told me no don't look down nothing pushed to the ground he wind picked up and threw me down too scared to make a sound and on the mountain the storms forget now i know who i am