

Maureen McGovern, And This I Find Is Beautiful

I believe that every thought
That anyone has ever thought
Somehow lingers in the air
And that in time, it lands somewhere
And this part will live again
In someone's heart, in someone's mind
And this I find is beautiful
And this I find is beautiful

I believe no star is lost
Though it may tumble from the sky
And I believe no tear is lost
When it runs down from your eye
When man returns to Earth,
The dreams he dreams will never die
And this I find is beautiful
And this I find is beautiful

And all the love I give to you,
These words of love I say to you
Will live through snow and sun and rain
In a thousand years, they'll still remain
To touch someone, someone

'Cause I believe that every thought
That anyone has ever thought
Somehow lingers in the air
And this I find is beautiful

And this I find is beautiful
And this I find is beautiful
(repeat and fade out)
