

McLusky, The All Encompassing Positive

Hope fades away while cassius lays his clay and early in the morning is the only time of day where we can get a nap in

and sleep our way through fire thoughts of distant shores that never leave our season without a decent reason but i saw you here before now your time has come to settle the score kick me to the floor

early in the morning

don't doubt your love could stop my heart for your life i deserve to die wrapped in a blanket not knowing when to stop it
