

Meaghan Jette Martin, Won't be seeing you again

When words fill me, I can't tell you how I feel about you, how I hurt because I am without you
And that's the way it must be
My heart's pounding, my body's shaking
There's no one around me, and I'm aching
Oh, and I will never ever know your love
Chorus

You are gone, and I know I won't
Be seeing you again
You are off with your lover, and I'm left being your friend
But somehow I know I won't be seeing you again
You think I'm sweet
You think that I'm too young
You think I'd fall apart if things should come undone
And I wish you'd take a closer look and give my love a try
I am older than my years and I have learned to conquer almost all my fears!
Except I fear I don't know how to tell you goodbye

Repeat Chorus

You are gone, and I know I won't
Be seeing you again
You are off with your lover, and I'm left being your friend
I know that you are intending to see me now and then
But somehow I know I won't be seeing you again
I won't be seeing you...again
