Mechanical Poet, Once Upon A Day

In the middle of the night Just let yourself awake Step to a windowpane See how the willows dance around the lake

Take a minute to get dressed Then sneak across the floor Now turn your Walkman on Put on the phones and fly outside the door

Magic our has arrived
Take your pains away
Fairytale comes in your life
Just as you wished it once upon a day

Run across a clover meadow Wet your face with dew Ride with the fairies down the empty lanes And see your dreams come true

Let your heart be free as much As you might ever need Wait 'till the morning rays sweep down the stars And wake the sleepy streets

Remember how they called you nuts
Remember how you stood the grief
How many tears you cried
What pain you felt but still tried to believe
Remember how your heart was bleeding
While you smiled
But you still didn't stop believing
You just couldn't give it up...
