

Melanie Doane, Happy Homemaker

Maybe I'd be happy to let it all go
And dedicate my life
To making jelly molds
Learn to cook and learn to sew
I'm a Happy Homemaker

Why have I been pushing so hard
When I could be out
In the backyard
Letting down my hair
Letting down my guard
I'm a Happy Homemaker

Barefoot and pregnant never looked so good
We're all dying to take our shoes off
Never what we want
It's always what we should
I'm a Happy Homemaker

Maybe it'll be different
This time 'round
We'll put to use the wisdom I hope we've found
I'd like to lose the crap
Without losing ground
I'm a Happy Homemaker

Barefoot and pregnant never looked so good
We're all dying to take our shoes off
Gone so far the other way
We're scared to be our mothers
And we're scared of going soft

Barefoot and pregnant never looked so good
We're all dying to take our shoes off
Never what we want
It's always what we should
I'm a Happy Homemaker
