

Melanie Garside, Snowshoes do you know that you can hide everything that you want and everything that you choose comes back to you and i say well they painted the walls all red and they put their little dreams to bed and they walked around talking in tongues and they thought they knew who was the one well you know it's gone i can sense that i see your mother in the bath and she's telling me not to ask but just to look at the colours in the water i'm just watching the oil reflection and the rainbow's coming down and you run this question out of town you out of town secrets that you hide there