

Melanie Garside, Stay

ever been to nowhere place? i spent some time before a faceless and a nameless place without no windows or no doors where your name is of no consequence where nothing is for sure where care or not about yourself you'll come across yet another wall how do you take it away? 'cause i don't want to stay
how do you take it away? 'cause i don't want to stay ever lived in careless place? i went there once before a dangerous and suppressive space where out you're stumbling around the walls where care not for the consequence your actions are not yours where know or not about the edge you'll push yourself and fall
how do you take it away? 'cause i don't want no i don't want to stay and deeper still in nothingness surprised yet still to notice this although it turns around each time it's real enough to slow your mind and shifting still i see it change see it blow away see it shift and change how do you take it away? 'cause i don't want to stay
how do you take it away? 'cause i don't want no i don't want no i don't want to stay
