Men Without Hats, The Great Ones Remember

Imagine yourself on the verge of committing
An act that you've always found silly or strange Imagine yourself on the edge of discovering Lately things have not been going your way
Communication is hard to establish
When things like a state of mind get in the way
People don't eat they just think what you feed them now
The horse with the blinders eating the hay
Silently watching yourself in the mirror
Wondering if somebody else is to blame
Could it be somebody's in on your destiny
Lately things have trouble looking the same
Could it be somebody else has the answer
Could it be somebody's pulling my strings
Say, that is quite a nice dress that you're wearing now
Jump into another ring
Can you imagine what we put up with now
Generals and morons say we are still as proud
We coin the phrases like we must win or die,
It's all so confusing today, hello goodbye
Don't forget that the great ones remember and please, don't forget that we're nearing December and Isn't it funny, the way it's connected
The print on your shirt and the one on the wall Imagine if everyone had the same haircut
Wouldn't it be funny running it all?
Communication is hard to maintain
When the clothes that you're wearing are hurting my eyes
Things like improvement don't come overnight, boy
But, at least you could try
Can you imagine what we put up with now Generals and morons say we are still as proud We coin the phrases like we must win or die, It's all too confusing for me, hello goodbye

Don't forget that the great ones remember and Please, don't forget that we're nearing December and Please, don't forget that the great ones remember and Please, don't forget where you were toward December. Please, don't forget that the great ones remember and
Please, don't forget that we're nearing December and
Please, don't forget where you were toward December.
