Merle Haggard, Here In Frisco

It's four a.m. in New York City three a.m. in Dallas The night is still early here in Frisco Market street's still going the same old shows are showing And I'm still all alone here in Frisco They say it's raining in Chicago and it's cold and clear in Denver Been windy all night long here in Frisco Troley cars are clinging the big Bay Town's swinging And I'm still all alone here in Frisco The way I feel tonight I won't be staying long But when I leave I leave my heart just like in a famous song Troley cars are clinging the big Bay Town's swinging And I'm still all alone here in Frisco And I'm still all alone here in Frisco And I'm still all alone here in Frisco
