

Merril Bainbridge, Miss You

I was only happy when you drove me crazy.
Everything about you made me feel so lazy.
I never felt so good and yet I feel so bad,
You were the strangest lover that I ever had.
But now I miss you,
Yes I miss you, now you're gone.

You were always telling me just what I should wear
I was always combing all the knots from your hair.
You're like a fisherman, your hook could pull me in,
Put me in a fry pan, couldn't wait to burn my skin,
But now I miss you,
Yes I miss you, now you're gone.

Every Sunday we would laugh a lot,
Making love and breakfast in bed.
You were grumpy when you had to get up.
I would have to toss a coin to see who'd make the bed.

I remember when you broke my favorite teacup
You just smiled that silly smile and made me act upset.
We used to fight a lot but what a time we had.
And when I think about those days they're not so bad
'Coz now I miss you,
Yes I miss you,
I'll always miss you, now you're gone.
