

Michael Demartino, Time To End The Story

First chapter

You stole my heart away from me
Showed me what true love should be
We were so close, you changed my life
How could a love so strong not go right
How do I even attempt to move on
When it's said our love would stay around
Why do I even care
That part inside me no longer can be found
My heart is broken down
I'm turning pages once again
It's time to make this story end
Time to close the book to this story
What's the point of continuing, when I knew the end before
Time to close the book to this story
Another writer will come along, I'm sure

Final chapter

I said goodbye, killing us both inside
I did what I could, you know I tried
There's no more to say, so I'll go my way
You know that it hurts me
But that's the price we pay
How do I even attempt to move on
When it's said our love would stay around
Why do I even care
That part inside me no longer can be found
My heart is broken down
I'm turning pages once again
It's time to make this story end
Time to close the book to this story
What's the point of continuing, when I knew the end before
Time to close the book to this story
Another writer will come along, I'm sure
