

Michael Nesmith, Opening Theme (Life, The Uns

Life, the unsuspecting captive
Of a million dreams,
Chains of desire bind so fastly to the earth.
Seeing the attachment formed
From knowing all those things;
Being alone and at one with the joys of rebirth.

Doesn't freedom look good?
Would you go if you could?
Fear keeps you locked up for good without keys.
But do not you suppose
That you could be among those
Standing in the shadows of release?

For Life is an unsuspecting captive
Of a million dreams,
Chains of desire bind so fastly to the earth.
Seeing the attachment formed
From knowing all those things;
Being alone and at one,
Being alone and at one,
Being alone and at one,
Being alone and at one,
Being alone and at one with the joys of rebirth.