

Michael W. Smith, Someday (Set The Children Free)

I know
There's a prayer flowing from
The longing
For the healing to come
Someday
No more dark, aching nights
Someday
I will open your eyes
The light will come, and I will set you free

Sometimes
There's a joy in the pain
Sometimes
Peace that can't be explained
Some find
A longing there in their soul
Someday
I will make all things whole
I promise to, set the children free

Someday
You'll find your place in the sun
Someday
When all hearts beat as one
You'll sing
With the heart of a child
Someday
When the river runs wild
My father comes, to set his children free

Some say it's a vision
Some say it's just a dream
I say it's a promise
A covenant, a destiny

I will come to set my children free

Someday (someday)
What the young ones have dreamed
Someday (someday)
All you've hoped and believed
Will be
You will all understand
The longing
Placed inside every man
Overcomes the world
And sets the children free
And I will come
To set my children free

Someday
We will see
We will see you
Someday
