

Michal, Fly To You

I put so much
Into this little dream I had
I swear to you
I could almost taste and touch
Peace at last

But if you taught me anything
It's how to let things I love so go
You said, "Through all this
Whatever becomes of me
I'll fly to you with lungs full of cement
Whatever the world does to me
I'll fly to you
In this land full of subtlety and envy
At least you'll always have me
Like a summer song
Like there's nothing wrong
I'll fly to you."

My remembrance of you
Is so real I could live in it
But it seems so long
Since I came to you
Searchin' for a friend

But that same voice that spoke to me
And whispers
Is somehow different now
You said, "Through all this
Whatever becomes of me
I'll fly to you with lungs full of cement
Whatever the world does to me
I'll fly to you
In this land full of subtlety and envy
At least you'll always have me
Like a summer song
Like there's nothing wrong
I'll fly to you."
