

Michelle Lewis, Mr. Marigold

(Michelle Lewis)

Drawn by your colors I could scale the garden wall
Past the "Don't Enter" signs and trying not to fall (and break my neck)
I should pick roses but I can't do as I am told
And you look so pretty in the light I want a bunch to hold

Watch each step I take so carefully
'Cause one false move and you're screamin'
Don't tread on me, don't tread on me, no

Mr. Marigold, I want your hand to hold
But the farmer's daughter's chasing me away

Laying my head down in a patch of orange and green
The smell in the air is strong, still I can't make myself leave
You're my temptation 'cause those petals look so sweet
I thought you were gentle but you're not
And you're poisonous to eat

Caught green-handed trying to sneak you out
With yellow on my chin and a stem in my mouth
Then I whispered too loudly

Mr. Marigold, I want your hand to hold
But the farmer's daughter's chasing me away
and I want my soul again, I want my heart to mend
But Mr. Marigold won't let me stay woohoowohoo...

I Watch each step I take so carefully, carefully
'Cause one false move and you're screamin'
Don't tread on me, don't tread on me, no

Mr. Marigold I want your hand to hold
But the farmer's daughter's chasing me away
I want my soul again, I want my heart to mend
But Mr. Marigold, Mr. Marigold

Oh Mr. Marigold, I want your hand to hold
But the farmer's daughter's chasing me away
I want my soul again I want my heart to mend
But Mr. Marigold, Mr. Marigold...
