

Milk Inc, Alone At Christmas

she looks outside her window while she's loosing track of time trying to find the reason not to cry tonight outside the snow is falling children sing there songs of piece she finds herself believing in a lie tonight
alone at christmas
alone at christmas
alone at christmas
the evening's getting darker some candles light the moon don't look like he finds his way back home, tonight
outside the snow is falling childrens sing there songs of piece
alone at christmas
alone at christmas
alone at christmas
there should be a time for happiness there should be a time for you and I
alone at christmas
alone at christmas
alone at christmas
alone at christmas
alone at christmas
