Milk Inc, Sweet Surrender

So many things she never said, Were there too many people fighting in your head Sometimes in love we all regret That's when the bruises show and you know your love is dead

Heaven knows it's sweet surrender Hope in life there's something better Now she draws the line on you Her freedom feels like sweet surrender Breathing is so pure and tender Now she draws the line on you

His jealousy was something nex She tried in vain but he can't hear the thruth His only colour turned her blue She leaving home for good She's got nothing left to lose

Oh what can free the tase of sweet surrender A trip away from love's own cruel pretender

So many things she never said Were there too many people fighting in your head
