

Mindy McCready, Scream

So tired of walking 'round
Dragging this ghost
Can't escape the constant link
That wears on my bones
It's too strong to rub it out
It stuck like a stain
A permanent reminder
Driving me insane

I still see finality
In that nickel worth face
Still hide this bitterness
I can almost taste
All the things I should have said
Still echo inside
Can't listen any longer
It won't change goodbye

I scream you name
To the rain fallin' down on me
I break the silence
Inside me
Since you left me with nothing to say
So I scream your name

Anger so very deep
Eats you up inside
Speaks like a parasite
There's nowhere to hide
I want to let it go
For it smothers my soul
Uncover my heart again
Fill in the hole

I scream your name
To the rain fallin' down on me
I break the silence
Inside me
Since you left me with nothing to say
So I scream your name

To the rain

I fall down to my knees
My face hits the ground
I throw my tears into the storm
As the thunder sounds

I scream your name
To the rain fallin' down on me
I break the silence
Inside me
Since you left me with nothing to say
So I scream your name
