Ministry, Shove

Woke up confused in a place I didn't know And heard the hissing of an overused stem The air around me is corrupt and on the take Heard someone shout "I think he's breathing again"

It seems at first that no-one ever succeeds You shove and shove until you're ready for more And if the truth forgets to visit again Don't take offense, he's never been here before

Shove! Shove! Shove! Shove! Shove in my head Shove! Till the quiet attacks

Feels just like someone sank their teeth in my head They tried to suck away my everlasting soul I talked to God and all his literary friends Said I was late so I just shoved it in again

Shove it again!