Moby, The Great Escape

I'll use a lock that has no key Aren't you in chains That no one else can see

Let the water creep over your face I'll send it in waves Just to watch you perform the great escape

How long can you hold your breath While you hold mine again and wait Just to watch you perform the great escape

I'll pull your arms tight behind you back Use myself as weight And wonder while you fade

How long can you hold your breath While you hold mine again and wait Just to watch you perform the great escape
