

Modest Mouse, Lounge

He don't remember
How it got there
He had a # written on his forearm
It spelled disaster

He entered the clubscene
All hoping, all hoping for dancing
He was lookin' a'lookin' so stunning his clothes reflected light.

All right!

She sat, she sat in the backseat the car was plush but had no heat and no not no one was blushing their technique was so damn right All right and!

He read the note in the black light
He thought he read minds and was not right That line still made him seem charming His clothes were shining, shining.
