

Moonlight Awakening, Impossibilities

Whatever way you are,
Whatever things you see
All these things incomplete so far

Whatever changes take
Thru every life you fake
This is the way you truly are

Yet here with you, seasons have changed
The light has gone out in the rain
And soon the time will come again
Where you cannot see how it ends

Whatever way you are,
Whatever things you dream,
It seems that you're trying much too hard

Whatever chance you take,
another promise breaks,
You cannot escape the way you are

I know you don't want to believe
That everyone's turning to leave
You fall like a glass to the floor
And cry as they walk out the door
You seem to be feeling you're free
Now everyone's turning to see
You've given them all that they need
But you've got no blood left to bleed

When the sun comes out again,
I see your shadow fade away...

Here with you, seasons have changed
The light has gone out in the rain
And soon the time will come again
Where you cannot see how it ends

You seem to be running this way
But no one can stop the pain
You seem to want all this to go
Until you are left alone