

Morley, Sin Of Reason

I am naked in your eyes
A warm place to run inside
I'm not here
I'm just a dream
Your soft moveable machine

You have run so many times
I have lost so many lives
In the blessing of each breath
I have no fear of my death

Sin of reason has a tongue
Speaks of more
The gentle ones
Years have ears
The world has eyes
But nothing's done about my life
I see myself in each
Grain of sand..
One woman across the lands

There is beauty in the stars
But we haven't come as far
I have freedom to conceive
I sweat your child to the sea

Sin of reason has a tongue
Speaks of more
The gentle ones
Years have ears
The world has eyes
But nothing's done about my life
I see myself in each
Grain of sand
One struggle across the lands

Oh..
I know one day I'll be gone
No.. no evidence left of my name
All my memories will be lost
My echo..
My echo will remain!