

Morten Harket, We'll Never Speak Again

The world outside my window
Dig holes into my brain
And all the ones before us
Left nothing but their names
And all of us are broken
And all of us in pain
Though some of us have spoken
We will never speak again
The world outside my window
Dig holes into my brain
Left me with nothing
Nothing but their names
And all of us are broken
And all of us have pain
Though some of us have spoken
We will never speak again
