Mozart Season, Streetlight Contagious

Broken glass and red lights flash I can
(If sunrise sunrise is your muse than I can)
See the city burning for miles
Run back for all you can
(If secrets secrets never change)
Then Im easy to replace
So come on baby its okay to (Ill be the last thing on your mind)
Say the words youre dying to say
Im clocking out for this one
(Im falling falling faster than youll ever run)
And Ill promise to show you the way
So call me on all my lies
Feed me on resignation
Its all a game till you break a heart
Then its a battle station
My tongue is still guilty if theres
One thing about me that still changes you
My empty streets still prove
That youll NEVER second guess me
Never stop to undress me
With your eyes
We might win this time
So choose the place (Ill choose the time)
And pretty soon (Youll realize)
This trace of lipstick down his back (down his back)
Is all we had
Over and over we lie (so here we lie)
Swimmin in sheets of white (bedsheets of white)
One day in this sea youll be drowning with me
So call me on all my lies
Feed me on resignation
Its all a game till the teardrops fall
Then its a battle station
My tongue is still guilty if theres
One thing about me that still changes you
My empty streets still prove
That youll NEVER second guess me
Never stop to undress me
With your eyes
We might win this time
I know you thought that I was perfect
But im not sure now that I am worth it
WITH MY BACK AGAINST THE WALL
ILL BE WAITING FOR YOUR CALL
To set me free AGAIN
My tongue is still guilty if theres
One thing about me that still changes you
My empty streets still prove
That youll NEVER second guess me
Never stop to undress me
With your eyes
We might win this time
My tongue is still guilty if theres
One thing about me that still changes you
My empty streets still prove
That youll NEVER second guess me
Never stop to undress me
With your eyes
We might win this time
NEVER second guess me
Never stop to undress me
With your eyes
We might win this time
