This tower of wooden blocks that I built
I DESTROYED, killed with my hand
I do not perceive any heat any more
I am actually these scattered pieces of dead wood

"Crush this heart with your hand";

It was because of my defects
Because of this wish of deformed morals
The song must be my redemption
The salvation accompanying this dead wood

"This intense sorrow that does not disappear, palms of my hands welded between hers";

Ah, trailing a past without end behind me
On wooden legs I walk over the remains of the trees that have died
If I am unable to protect anything
Would that I become a trunk, waiting to desiccate itself

Until the end of these ever returning nauseas
I need darkness
I ask for help, but it's foolish
I bathe in this empty light

I continue to discuss you and mutilate you

"Am I alive? I'm not sure of anything anymore"

Since this day

Ah, trailing a past without end behind me

I raise my wrapped hands of pain

I have nothing anymore that rids me of this suffering

I am a trunk, not a man

I will live, with these hands, to gain my redemption, my salvation
