Muse, Natural Disaster

Conforming on a monday too often and too cold but you aren't even listening because you are just too old to feel an earthquake too cool to even care but you aren't even listening so why should I? you are a natural disaster and I've wanted you too much and now I'm gonna lose I've wanted you too much and now I've gotta choose you're the cause of all this and I'm sick of trying to please you and you're gonna feel my emotions coming yeah because you're the world Íike a broken ďamn you're empty and all that's left are the sticks and stones that were built by other people and it really shows and you aren't even listening cause you are just too old to feel an earthquake too cool to even care but you aren't even listening so why should I? you are a natural disaster and I've wanted you too much and now I'm gonna lose I've wanted you too much and now I've gotta choose you're the cause of all this and I'm sick of trying to please you and you're gonna feel my emotions coming because you're the world