My Former Self, This Heart-Broken Tournament

You are losing me Let's look at it that way Just think about everything You'll be kicking yourself someday

The last apology I will ever give to you It's not even my fault You were too good to be true

But again I fall back in line Into your spell Sucked in somehow

Such a disappointment Such aggravation and confusion This heart-broken tournament Has left me abandoned

So I'm going to say forget you I'm so much better off without you You think I lie and all the odds are against me I know what I need I need to get away

You're both being stupid and so am I For letting this go on for so long