

Naglfar, The Eclipse Of Infernal Storms

The gate rose before him
In stood there open wide A bloodstained portal of might His travel to the land unknown

I awakened from this dismal dream the same as thousand times before This sight is so impure
So filled with mourning and with grace It cries a message to me of which I cannot ever grip A man and this enormous gate with his name on it written in blood...

I fall to me kness
Spelling my name
to be unleashed, and ever blessed
The great beyond lies open in front of me

I could see the gate rise before my eyes
With a freezing smile
I entered the reign of death
I could see the truth like an open book
And then I knew what I had become

I awakened from the dismal dream
The threshold to the dead I've passed this enormous gate with my name on it written in blood...

In blood... I fall to me knees
Spelling my name
to be unleashed, and ever blessed
The great beyond lies open in front of me