

Naked Earth, All The People

Come back to the land, I said, my people
We've drifted so far away
Come back to the land, I said, my people
We're growing a little with every day
Come back, come back, come back, come back
Said, come back to the land
A bond between us we need to identify
A long, long way to go to reach the sky
Do we really see the spiralling expanse
A billion points of life with a split-second chance
In the wisdom of one people rooted in one land
Join our efforts to embrace the common band
Come back to the land, I said, my people
We've drifted so far away
Come back to the land, I said, my people
We're growing, growing in a conscious way
Come back, come back, come back, come back
Said, come back to the land
Include all those unique in culture and tongue
We must take care of the less-fortunate ones
We have the power to make a start
Express what you feel inside your heart
Realising our roots in a swirling sea
A living thirst to survive on a star set free
Come back, come back, come back, come back
Said, come back to the land
(Lyrics: Patrick Dintino; Music: Patrick Dintino, Russell Ives; 1994 Naked Earth Productions)