

Naked, The Road Home

Castaway

I was stranded

Tired, cold and branded

By my own heart who calls out your name

I saw the ocean

Endless blue

She dragged me in til I learned the truth

How one wrong move could lead me so far away from you

And then the shore ahead in the distance

I believe in the power of man

In a sinner's losing hand

In a love you always know

And I pave the road home

Warm the earth

She has left me

To wander through this cold sea

On a slow ride that answers my soul

To see the eye of life, the sun of man

Unstone the heart of the clenching hand

When all the lies are buried deep in sand

You keep yourself afloat

And when you reach you find you'll begin again

I believe in the power of man

In a sinner's second chance

In a love you call your own

And I pave the road home

I was almost gone

But then you warmed the tide

I had lost sight

You revealed the light inside

I believe in the power of man

In a sinner's final stand

In a love you know will grow

And I pave the road home
