

Neal McCoy, The Key To Your Heart

Hearts get broken and walls get built around them
That's why I can't break through to you
If there's a way in, no I haven't found it
I'll keep searchin' til I do

If I could find the key to your heart
I'd unlock the part that let's you trust again
And then you could begin to love
You'd open up inside and let me in
If only I could find the key to your heart

There's a doorway that I know will lead me
To a place beyond your doubts
Darlin', someday, I hope you'll believe me
I could never let you down

If I could find the key to your heart
I'd unlock the part that let's you trust again
And then you could begin to love
You'd open up inside and let me in
If only I, I could find the key to your heart

Girl, I give you all my love every day and night
You have all that you've been dreamin' of
For the rest of your life

If I could find the key to your heart
I'd unlock the part that let's you trust again
And then you could begin to love
You'd open up inside and let me in
If only I could find the key to your heart
