

Neurosonic, Crazy Sheila

Sad day for Sheila
With her jellyfish smile
Contemplating all the choices she made
I have to admit
When she decided she would leave
You couldn't wipe the smile off of my face

She finally found
Her way home
To find that all she'd loved has gone

Pictures of herself
On the walls wearing nothing
I guess just to try to fit in
You have to agree
She was all sixes and sevens
But that doesn't ever add up to ten

She finally found
Her way home
To find that all she'd loved has gone

You know the crazy bitch
Would never back down an inch
Or admit that she would cheat on her man
The world was getting around
It was time to leave town
She took a hint and unexpectedly ran

She finally found
Her way home
To find that all she'd loved has gone
She finally found
Her way home
To find that all she'd loved has gone

She finally went home
It's gone
It's gone
