Neutral Milk Hotel, Candy Coated Dream

A candy coated dream
With parks and trees and figurines
And her arms wrapped 'round my sleeve
With tiny steps and eyes of green;
Toy guitar that's out of tune
Eyes fixed on morning time cartoons
And by the lantern of the moon
I will dream of a love like you

And will you hang up high A family portrait smile Will you kiss my child, As she is dancing now; This figure i will frame A life without a name But this thought i proclaim I'm just romancing now I'm only chancing now

A candy coated dream With hearts and string and angel wings And her life will fall between The cracks that follow you and me

And will you hang up high A family portrait smile Will you kiss my child, As she is dancing now; This figure i will frame A life without a name But this thought i proclaim I'm just romancing now I'm only chancing now
