

New Atlantic, Like A Wave

When i was younger the world seemed so big
But you watched over me
And as sure as the sun would rise
I watched you change
And now im older
I understand
Dont skip a beat because life wont wait
And like a wave come crashing down
Turn your life inside out breathe deep and just let go
You know we all wish we could go back
To when times were a little less harder
And we all were a little bit younger
But every time i think of you it feels just like youre here and when youre eighteen
The world can seem so crazy
And its just so much to take when you never catch a break just like that month by your side
I read the words in your eyes
They said dont ever skip a beat because life just wont wait and like a wave come crashing down
Turn your life inside out breathe deep and just let go you know we all wish we could go back
To when times were a little less harder
And we all were a little bit younger but every time i think of you it feels just like youre here again.
