

New Years Day, Sunrise Sunset

I'll always have a sunrise
I'll always have a sunset I'll always have the ocean to help deal with these emotions and i'll always be a highway that's riding through the desert in southern california
but all i really want is you all i really want is you you'll always have your sunrise you'll always have your sunset and i know you need some time alone even though it's selfish i pray to god you keep in mind this broken heart you left behind
in southern california
there'll always be a hole in my heart that's shaped just like you and there'll always be an empty space in everything that i do but i'll always have this force that i can sing until the day i die
i'll always have this force that i can sing until the day i die
