

New Years Day, Sunset Sunrise

I'll always have a sunrise.
I'll always have a sunset.
I'll always have the ocean, to help deal with these emotions.
And their'll always be a highway that's running through the desert in Southern California, but all I really want is you.

You'll always have your sunrise.
You'll always have your sunset.
And I know you need some time alone, even if it's selfish.
I pray to god you keep in mind this broken heart you left behind in Southern California.

All I really want is you.

Their'll always be a whole in my heart that's shaped just like you, and their'll always be a empty space in everything that I do, but I'll always have this voice that I can sing until the day I die, in Southern California.

All I really want is you.

But I'll always have this voice that I can sing until the day I die in Southern California.