

Niamh Kavanagh, In Your Eyes

Showing no emotion, my feelings locked inside
I made myself an island, trying to take my heart and hide
I built a wall around me, afraid of letting go
But suddenly an open door I never saw before
In your eyes
I see the light leading me home again
It's heaven in your arms, my love
My heart is in your hands
In you eyes, seems so right
I see forever in your smile
This woman is a child again
(In your eyes)
Love's been building bridges between your heart and mine
I'm safe here on my island, but I'm out on the edge this time
I built a wall around me, thought I'd save myself the pain
Your touch swept me away, now I'll never play it safe again
In your eyes
I see the light leading me home again
It's heaven in your arms, my love
My heart is in your hands
In you eyes, seems so right
I see forever in your smile
This woman is a child again
I've never been this close
How do I know love will survive?
I'm walking a tightrope
Here, in your arms, I'm alive
In your eyes, I see the light
I see forever in your smile
This woman is a child again
Oh... in your eyes
(I see the light leading me home again)
See the light, I see the light
(It's heaven in your arms, my love)
(My heart is in your hands)
Whoa...
(In you eyes, feels so right)
I see forever in your smile
This woman is a child again
When I look in your eyes