Nicholis Louw, Everything I Touch

Everything I touch turns into you Everything around me has been touched by you Everything I breathe smells just like you And everywhere I turn it seems youre there

Seems like no one else remembers you My worlds been shaken torn in two Everything Ive done has been for you How can I pretend to be the same

I still love you Every night I think of you I dream of you Every time I close my eyes I cry for you Youll always be my star

No one ever cared for me like you lve built a world my life for loving you The only thing left in me is your memory Everything else in me has gone with you