

Nicole C. Mullen, When Heaven Calls

Much faster then,
The blink of an eye
Lightening will flash
And he'll split the sky
Nobody knows
The day or the time
The trumpet will sound
And we will arise

When heaven calls
This life is over
We'll stand before
Our god and savior
When heaven calls
We must be ready
To trade these mortal things
For immortality
When heaven calls

For every man
There is a time
To love and to laugh,
To live and to die.
So i'm living for
The one who is love
And i'm dying to hear
Hear him say well done.

When heaven calls
This life is over
I'll stand before
My God and Savior
When heaven calls
I will be ready
To trade these mortal things
For immortality
When heaven calls

Now, behold the lamb,
Who takes, Away my sin
The splendor of paradise,
Will welcome me
with arms opened wide

When heaven calls,
This life, it will be over
We'll stand before,
Our God and Savior
When heaven calls,
I must, you must be ready
To trade these mortal things,
For immortality
When hea-ven calls,
When hea-ven calls
When heaven, when heaven, calls
