

Nikki Hassman, The Lonely Ones

I feel something stirring
Could it be that I'm alive?
It's been so long since I've felt
Emotion rise

Exposing emptiness
Can be a painless paradise
An open canvas waiting
For someone to come inside

Oh, heaven knows all the lonely ones
All the ones that walk away from love
Oh, and I hope that I can learn again to trust
There is nothing that love can't overcome

Painting pictures of me
As I'm chasing the wind
Searching to fill my soul
With what I'll have to chase again

I grow tired of running

Oh, I need a place to stay
So paint me a kind of love
That I can't push away

Oh, heaven knows all the lonely ones
All the ones that walk away from love
Oh, and I hope that I can learn again to trust
There is nothing that love can't overcome

INSTRUMENTAL BRIDGE

Oh, heaven knows all the lonely ones
All the ones that walk away from love
Oh, and I hope that I can learn again to trust
There is nothing that love can't overcome

Oh, heaven knows, He knows all the lonely ones
All the ones that walk away from love
Oh, and I hope that I can learn again to trust
There is nothing that love can't overcome